LOCAL MATTER.

E. C. WOODSON, City Editor

LOCAL BRIEFS.
Hon. John Pool is in town.
No Mayor's Court yesterday.
One horse death yesterday from the corn malady.

The weather is damp and cloudy.
Bad on the epiphic.

W. A. Smith, Esq., Congressman elect from this District, is at the Yarborough House.

Captain T. C. Evans, formerly Junior Editor of the Hillsboro Recorder is in the city.

Maj. R. G. Hay, General State Agent of the Security Life Insurance Company of New York, is in the city.

The Yarborough House baggage wagon, drawn by oxen, created some excitement for losers yesterday.

To find out the number of children in a street—beat a drum : to ascertain the number of idle men—start a dog fight.

The new one hundred dollar greenback will soon be in circulation, they would be cordially welcomed at this office.

Many persons write articles and send them to the editor to be corrected, as it is an editor's office was a House of Correction.

Several Canadians arrived in the city yesterday evening on the Raleigh & Gaston Railroad on a land prospecting tour.

Woodson, the Liberal candidate for Governor in Missouri, leads the ticket.
Who will say now, "there is nothing in a name?"

We don't recommend advertising as the best way of getting a wife, but we are confident that it is the best way to get a trade.

The new track of the Hook & Lader Fire company will arrive Monday morning, and the parade and supper will occur in the evening.

Fraps is refitting entire his Billiard and Bagatelle saloon. When completed it will present a more attractive appearance than ever before.

In accordance with the order of the Major, several horses, suffering from Epizootic were taken up by the police yesterday and ordered off Fayetteville street.

The attention of all interested is called to the advertisement of Williamson, Upchurch & Thomas, in regard to storage. Their new and spacious brick warehouse, immediately along side the Rail Road near the Central depot, is an elegant building and will hold all the late war as a member of Capt. Graham's battery.

The above announcement we copy from the Petersburg Index of yesterday.
Mr. Uzzell was the father of W. H. Uzzell, one of the proprietors of this paper, who received a telegram yesterday announcing the serious illness of his father only a few minutes before the departure of the Northern train.

Without losing a moment he made the train, but arrived too late to find his father living. His funeral will take place from the Presbyterian church in Petersburg this morning at 10 o'clock.

DEATH OF THE REV. JAMES REID.
A telegram was received in this city last evening from Greensboro announcing the sudden death in that place of the Rev. James Reid, the newly elected Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Mr. Reid, as stated in our local columns, was taken violently ill, on the R. & G.
Cars, near this city Wednesday evening, and was borne to the Cottage Hotel on his arrival, where he spent the night. Thursday morning he recovered sufficiently to make his appearance on the streets, and left here Thursday evening with a relapse and died yesterday about 5 o'clock. Mr. Reid was one of the oldest members of the North Carolina Methodist Conference, his whole life having been spent in the ministry. He was the father of Dr. N. F. Reid, the present presiding Elder of the Conference of Greensboro, who is said to be one of the ablest Divines of the North Carolina Conference.

The dining room of the old Yarborough already assumes a "Legislative" appearance. Last evening at tea every table was well filled. Many strangers were around, the Doctor was smiling
"pensive and childlike." Fuller, dute-fully, while Parham's pleasant expression of countenance plainly indicated his gratification over the prospect of a successful season this Fall and Winter.

THE EPIHIPPIC.
SPECIAL NOTICE
MAYOR WHITAKER ISSUES AN ORDER TO REMOVE ALL CASES FROM THE STREETS.

"LOAFER," "FANNY HAYWOOD"
AND "POMEROY" IMPROVING.

NO FATAL CASES.

There has been but little change in the horse malady since yesterday's report, with the exception of its appearance in the stable of Sheriff Lee, who has four of the finest horses in the city.

At Wynne, Yancey & Co.'s stables there are fifty-five cases instead of forty-eight as stated yesterday, all of which are doing well. There are some half dozen cases that are seriously affected but the proprietors apprehend no fatal results from the disease.

The racers, "Loafer," "Fanny Haywood" and "Pomeroys" that were suffering a great deal on Thursday, are improving, and hopes are entertained of their ultimate recovery.

No cases have as yet appeared at the other public stables where business continues as heretofore. Several dray horses with the disease on them were observed on the street yesterday, whereupon Mayor Whitaker issued an order to the police to have them removed from the public thoroughfares. We hear of no other new cases in private stables, and it is to be hoped that the storm will blow over without inflicting any serious damage.

The only visible effects of the malady is the appearance of ox carts only at the market and the number of ox teams generally on the street. The Yarborough House baggage wagon came out yesterday drawn by oxen and followed by a crowd of boys through the street shouting "call for your baggage" etc., etc.

No report from the country.

DEATH OF AN OLD AND ESTEEMED CITIZEN.—We regret to announce the death of Mr. Wm. J. Uzzell, an old and esteemed citizen of Petersburg, which occurred at his residence on Sycamore street about 12 o'clock yesterday. His disease was bilious colic. He had been unwell for several days, but it was not supposed that his condition was dangerous. He was out on Tuesday and went to the polls and voted. Mr. Uzzell was about sixty years of age, and was much respected by all who knew him. He served gallantly throughout the late war as a member of Capt. Graham's battery.

Woodson, the Liberal candidate for

SATURDAY NOVEMBER 6, 1872.

JORDAN STONE, Managing Editor.

SAM'L T. WILLIAMS, Political Editor.

VANCE AT WAKE FOREST.

We have promised our readers to give some extracts from the address of Ex-Governor Z. B. Vance, delivered before the Graduating Class and Literary Societies of Wake Forest College, on June the 26th, 1872.

We therefore proceed to give to-day some extracts from the first part of this able and statesmanlike effort, and will to-morrow give the concluding portion.

We believe that our readers will enjoy these extracts much more than anything we could write.

For this address, the thanks of the reading public are due to the Philomathem Society of that Institution, at whose solicitation the distinguished gentleman prepared the oration and at whose request and expense it was published.

The theme chosen was politics, not politics in its ordinary partisan sense, but politics embracing "those vital and elemental principles of Government" of which it behoves us to think and talk much."

The Governor, in his exordium, says he proposes to talk about things with which he is most familiar, and having devoted the best years of his life to the study of the political affairs of this and other nations, we are not surprised when he tells us of the subject which he undertakes to discuss for the instruction of those who, in inviting him to address them, expected words of counsel and of wisdom on the interesting occasion of their annual Commencement.

The speaker first points out the dangers threatening every nation which has striven to be free. He traces the "blazed pathway" which history teaches of the great exemplar Republics of the World:

First there is the birth—the child-nation brought forth in the manger of poverty, and existing and the blows and neglects of the world. It is nourished by the self-denial, the bravery, the suffering, the virtue and simplicity of a primitive. The individual freedom of its members is of that national liberty which pervades all its institutions. These, first combined for nation defence, secure the safety and stimulate to the highest pitch in the energies and virtues of the people. When perfect security is established, then follows a thirst for glory, which, as there is no outlet for it on defensive principle, finds vent in aggression upon neighbors, and in the public aggrandizement.

Then comes the pride and the accumulation of the means to gratify that insatiate passion—wealth.

But this time the child has become a giant; simplicity is forgotten; poverty is despised; and the freedom which was so inestimable in the beginning has become a thing of small consideration. It expels amid the flame of national glory, and gives place to the prouder passions inspired by magnificence and the lust of Empire. Law and duty—the sublimest jewels in the crown of Liberty—adorn only the set phrase of the demagogue or the banners of a faction, as, in the Roman Republic, the inauguration of the Consuls, long after their functions had ceased, continued to be kept up for the purpose of marking the years and giving the mob a holiday.

Then comes luxury, effeminacy, corruption, cruelty and slavery, decay, bloody death and night.

And is not all this true? How much does the history of any free government of the past vary from it? Is it not almost an axiomatic truth that freedom is born of poverty, flourishes in small communities, and perishes in the embrace of Wealth and Empire? Does not the passion for liberty die out of the human breast before the more seductive allurements of riches, ease and national glory?—even as the unselfish, devoted, love of youth grows hard and cold before the grasping ambitions and avarices of mature age?"

He warns his youthful hearers of the "great error of forming their political opinions and principles from the rant of the hustings and the flaunting lies of party trickery. Politics are slandered by the popular prejudice, though politicians may not be. They should be studied with all the diligence and with all the zeal for truth with characterize the pursuit of any other branch of human science. For it is to us, practically, the greatest of all sciences, there being no earthly blessing which God has vouchsafed to men greater than that of good government—none more priceless. Chaos and the cosmos are the physical types of anarchy and law, the shadow and the zenith of man's temporal condition. It is through the innumerable pretenders, only, that politics become a by-word and reproach. But the great masters and the earnest students of political economy constitute the glory of all countries, and the chiefest benefactors of all peoples.

The speaker then proceeds to show that the greatest dangers which threaten our liberties point to the overthrow of the fundamental principles of our Government. These principles are referred to as embraced in the Bill of Rights, which he terms the "Apostles' Creed of Liberty." The security of the person and property of the citizen as guaranteed in the Magna Charta of Henry III is adverted to, from which era is dated the great writ of Habeas Corpus, which from that time every subject had a right to demand.

The minds of the colored men are not yet prepared to receive the truth.

The time has not yet come when they will listen to reason or argument. Prejudice and passion seem to control them, and they are led to the polls, like sheep to the shambles, by characterless and mercenary political adventurers who make tools of them for their own selfish purposes.

So long as the colored men of the South suffer themselves to be made the root vigorously and bore fruit in season. So rapid has been our growth that in a single century, in extent of territory, population, wealth, strength, and all the fruits of modern civilization, we have overtaken and outstripped nations of a thousand years maturity. Young in time, we are already old in development, and we are beginning those same periods of danger which arise in older communities from great wealth, luxurious manners, bust of powers, and public corruption. Though a vast physical growth is yet before us—so vast that I would not venture to prophecy its limits—yet it was undoubtedly this growth around the edges which spread the Roman Empire continually, while a deadly rotteness was eating up her glorious heart."

Next is discussed the protection of the property of the citizens from seizure, and its resultant, the political maxim of this country that there should be no taxation without representation:

"These, with trial by jury, more ancient than the rest, are the principal or central ideas of Anglo Saxon liberty, around which all the others have been clustered. Liberty of speech, the freedom of the press, the privileges of parliament, the right of petition and to bear arms; the three branches of Government, each equal and independent; the subordination of the military to the civil authority; the franchises of the municipalities; the prohibition of ex post facto laws; all these and many similar principles have been eliminated in the enlightened progress of statesmanship, and have been established among the bulwarks of free dom."

After referring briefly to the struggles of our ancestors to preserve these great rights, how they fought their rulers to extort them from unwilling Kings, the "rude iron-handed Plantagenets and Ludors, or the false and fickle Stuarts," how they hewed out their way across path after path of despotism, and how the victory was finally achieved, until every avenue seemed guarded by all that human wisdom could suggest, the speaker adds:

"But there is no end in this world to the struggle between good and evil, freedom and despotism. The warfare of Ormuzd and Abrahim is eternal. New conditions of society constantly thrust new evils upon us, and necessitate sleepless vigilance which is the price of liberty. Tyranny is protean and aggressive, and above all, insidious. The sentinel who keeps the way of the tree of liberty must of a truth hold a flaming sword that turneth every way."

THE WORK BEFORE US.

Now that the excitement of the Presidential election has passed, and a Waterloo defeat has been sustained by those who opposed Grant's re-election, it behoves the true sons of North Carolina to address themselves to the work of saving what there is left of the wreck of our former fortunes, and to aid in developing the resources and building up the prosperity of the State.

Although we have sustained a great national calamity in the re-election of a Radical President—and although North Carolina, by fraud and corruption, has become disgraced by the nominal election of a Radical Governor, yet there is much work yet to be done by those who love the State and who would save her from still further disasters and outrages.

We have a Democratic Legislature which can do much for the benefit of the people by enacting wholesome and beneficial laws.

The Legislature will have an important work to perform, and we have no doubt it will address itself to its duties promptly and patriotically.

The future is dark and gloomy for the State and nation, but let us hope for the best, and, in the midst of reverses, let us strive to mitigate our misfortunes and, if it be possible to do so, make seeming calamities redound to the interests and welfare of the people.

NO REPININGS.

It is useless to indulge in repinings over the result of the recent election.

We have the consciousness of having endeavored to perform our duty faithfully to our party and to the country, and if disasters have overtaken us we have the consolation to know that we did what we could to prevent them and to save North Carolina from the hands of the Radicals.

Some of our cotemporaries are discussing at great length and with much ability the causes of our defeat. This may be all well enough, but we doubt whether much practical good will come of such discussion.

Our duty now is, not to indulge in vain regrets over the past, which is irreversible, but to look to the future in the face, and prepare for the work which will be demanded at our hands.

PREVENTED FROM SPEAKING.

We have taken occasion several times recently to allude to the system of terrorism exercised towards the colored Conservatives by the Radicals of their own race.

We learn from the Salisbury Watchman, that De Witter, the colored Greeley speaker, who attempted to make a speech in Salisbury on Monday night before the election, was hooted down by his colored audience and compelled to desist.

The minds of the colored men are not yet prepared to receive the truth.

The time has not yet come when they will listen to reason or argument. Prejudice and passion seem to control them, and they are led to the polls, like sheep to the shambles, by characterless and mercenary political adventurers who make tools of them for their own selfish purposes.

So long as the colored men of the duples of designing politicians they will remain the slaves of their political masters, and will be kept in the chains of servitude and va-salage.

THE FIGHT SECTIONAL.

The North forced the recent national struggle to turn on sectional issues. Notwithstanding the fact that the majority of the South voted for their life-long political opponent for President, as an evidence of their anxiety to buy the past, yet the result shows that Mr. Greeley carried only five or six Southern States, and did not receive the electoral vote of a single Northern State.

This fact alone shows more plainly than any argument we could use that Greeley was defeated at the North because he was in favor of extending magnanimity to the South.

A RAILROAD RELIC OF THE CONFEDERATE GOVERNMENT.—The Government has begun to recover the railroad from Danville, Va., to Greensborough, N. DR. KIRBY has completed a handsome residence in Goldsboro.

GOLDSBORO Town property is increasing in value, says the Messenger.

The Salem Literary Society is flourishing, as we learn from the Press.

BISHOP ATKINSON will be in Winston on the 14th and Goldsboro on the 17th inst.

MCEDWEE, a colored man, was killed in Statesville on the 5th inst., by a Mr. Hale.

THE Washington Express announces the convalescence of Mr. B. F. Satterthwaite.

REV. DR. MORAN will address the Cape Fear Agricultural Association on Tuesday.

Some thief made an unsuccessful attempt to rob the store of Smithfield & Bernhardt, at Salisbury, on Friday last.

TOAD WILSON, of Statesville, was kicked by a horse on the morning of the 6th inst., and died soon after from the effects.

THE Washington Express says some evil-minded people in that town amuse themselves by breaking out the drug store windows.

An affray occurred at Eureka, Robeson county, between the mulattoes of Scuffletown, in which two Oxendines were cut with a knife and badly wounded.

SOME friend has placed $500 in the hands of the editor of the Goldsboro Messenger, as a special premium, for the bed quilt made by Miss Jennie Cox, exhibited at the Goldsboro Fair.

THE Winston Sentinel says that Eugene Wright and Mary Holland, intent on matrimony, in spite of the old folks at home, were spiced by Rev. Mr. Franklin early on Monday morning, and sent on their way rejoicing.

THE Lumberton Robesonian learns that the gin house of W. D. Townsend, Esq., near Rockingham, in Richmond county, was consumed by fire on the 22d ult., together with about twenty bales of cotton. No insurance.

The Goldsboro Messenger gives the following list of recent deaths:

Mrs. Betty Smith, a widow lady, died at her residence in Grantham's ownership on the 29th ult. Mrs. White, wife of D. B. L. White, died in Goldsboro on the 5th inst. King Vann died at Goldsboro on the 4th.

THE Winston Sentinel says that a communication from I. G. Lash, Financial Agent for Forsyth county, to the Board of County Commissioners, states that the Sheriff has failed to pay over to him $1872 of the R. R. tax for 1868, and $9,000 of the tax of 1870 and that this failure has cost the county $3,500. Of the tax for 1871, the Collector has paid over $6,727.

UNDER the head of "Wife Wanted," we find the following in the last number of the Salisbury Watchman: A young gentleman who is entirely too busy to pay the usual price in walks, rides, flirtations and courtship nonsense generally, in order to obtain a wife, hopes he may not shock the sensibility of the hard sense of the truly rational class of female candidates for matrimony by soliciting correspondence by mail. Letters addressed to "G," post office box —, Salisbury, N. C., will receive his prompt attention.

THE Robesonian says that Stephen Lowry attended a Justice's Court at Union Chapel Church, in Burnt Swamp township, on Saturday last, and spent the day witnessing a trial in which two citizens were concerned. There were on the ground a large number (50 or 60), we learn) mulattoes and half a dozen whites. The outlaw carried in his hands a Spencer rifle and wore in his belt around him several large pistols. We learn that he seemed entirely at ease, and during the progress of the trial manifested considerable interest in it.

JIM ALEXANDER, col., killed Caleb Henry, col., at a corn-shucking, about six miles from Salisbury last Friday night.

The shuckers at the corn pile had been divided, Jim Alexander leading one half, and Caleb Henry the other. Henry beat Jim and ran over his corn. They quarreled, when Jim seized a piece of a pole with which he struck Caleb on the back of the head with such force as to fracture his skull and cause death about six hours after. The murderer has not yet been arrested.

Coroner Fraley was summoned to the scene of murder and his investigation elicited the above facts. So we learn from the Watchman.

THE Lumberton Robesonian, alluding to the recent report of the capture of Applewhite, one of the Lowery gang, in Atlanta, Georgia, says:

"Some weeks ago, Sheriff McMillan received a letter from a man in Harris county, Georgia, stating that a negro man had made his appearance there who gave his name as Hiram Lowery, and claimed to be from Robeson county, N. C. It was suspected that this man had some connection with the outlaw gang of this county, and a description of the outlaws was asked for. The Sheriff immediately sent by mail a full description of George Applewhite and Henry Berry Lowery, both of whom have been known to be absent for some time and supposed to be dead. Nothing further was heard until Thursday last when a telegram was received from Atlanta, Ga., informing him of the arrest of a negro supposed to be Geo. Applewhite, late of this county. Sheriff McMillan replied by telegraph requesting that the prisoner be detained until he could arrive by rail. On Friday morning, accordingly, he set out for Atlanta to see the prisoner. Being delayed in Wilmington, he did not reach Atlanta till Monday morning, since which time nothing has been heard from him. A despatch from him was anxiously expected all day yesterday, but none has yet been received. From his silence we infer that he failed to identify the prisoner."

MAGNOLIA ejocies in a revolving lamp.

The Kinston Gazette reports the death of Mrs. Virginia Turnage.

EPHRAIM DOBBINS, colored, of Rowan County, was killed on Friday by a burning tree falling upon him.

The Salisbury Watchman complains of a good deal of looseness about the management of the municipal affairs of that town.

JOSEPH FOWLER, colored, of Wilmington, who was acquitted at the late term of the New Hanover Court for abandoning wife, was again arrested by his affectionate spouse, on a peace warrant, on the charge of assault and battery. So says the Wilmington Star.

JOHN KNOWLES, aged 93, was recently baptised and received in the Baptist Church in Sampson county. The ceremony, performed by the Rev. O. M. Matthews, was made very impressive and interesting from the extreme age of the gentleman who received the sacred rites.

THE Salisbury Watchman speaks very highly of Miss Patterson's readings in that place. The Watchman says: We were under the impression that some of the notices of the press concerning her readings and recitations, had been extravagant: but, after hearing and seeing her, we are prepared to endorse all that we have read of her charming and interesting performances.

THE Salem Press says: Corn huskings or "shuckings," once so popular and common in this section, have become almost obsolete. One night last week a good old-fashioned one took place at Mr. A. N. Reich's plantation, some two miles from town. The young folks enjoyed the frolic hugely. Lots of corn to shuck, and plenty of good things to eat, made a very lively time.

THE Kinston Gazette "goes for" Judge Clarke for adjourning Lenoir Court for the benefit of a few parties who wished to attend the Goldsboro Fair. The Gazette says: "To say the least of it, we pronounce this an unwise and unjust act upon the part of the Judge, as we are informed by officers of the Court that the calling and holding of an extra session will put the county to an additional expense of $500, to say nothing of the inconvenience and expense to which suitors, jurors and witnesses will necessarily be subjected."

THE Wilmington Journal of Thursday says: We saw a curiosity yesterday in the shape of a huge pumpkin, the actual weight of which is 95 pounds. It was raised on Mr. John A. Parker's plantation, about 38 miles about 38 miles above this city, on the Cape Fear river, and is now on exhibition at Mr. Tom Thornton's store, on Second street. It will be exhibited at our Fair, next week, and the county and State are challenged to beat it. The specimen we saw is said to only one of several of the same size.

VALUABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE

I offer for sale my plantation in Greene county, N. C., known by name containing two thousand acres, about three hundred cleared. It is well adapted to corn and grain, but particularly to cotton.

STREETER PLACE,

The soil is of a nature to stand wet or dry. This place is three miles from Marlboro, four from Newtown, eight from Snow Hill, twenty from Greenville, with a large and convenient water supply, and is well up, and necessary outbuildings, in new and good order, conveniently arranged.

A twenty-horse power engine to gin cotton, saw, truck, two gristmills, grinding stones, of the best quality, water in all the land. Excellent neighborhood, churches, good schools convenient, a young orchard of every variety of choice fruit, and ample room.

Lands not in cultivation are well timbered with oak, hickory, and pine, convenient for fencing. No heavy ditching, due to the very broken surface, with other facilities for managing is convenient in and on all parts of the plantation.

All my Miles, Corn, Fodder, Farming implements can be had for $1000. Should more than one person wish to buy the land it can be divided to suit purchasers.

Gentlemen desirous of such property can have a better cotton farm in the State, and the undersigned proposes to sell solely because she wishes to give up business and live a more quiet life.

Those wishing to buy can come and examine the plantation for themselves or address me.

NORTH CAROLINA GRANVILLE COUNTY, SUPERIOR COURT.

Lunsford A. Paschal, Public Administrator of John M. Collins, deceased, AGAINST

Caroline Collins, Jesse Collins, Albert Collins, and others, Pitt county, N. C.

Spars proceeded to make real estate assessments for payment of debts.

This cause coming on to be heard and appearing to the satisfaction of the court, Jesse Collins was found to be a resident of the State of Kentucky, on motion of John W. Hayes, Attorney for the plaintiff, it is therefore ordered that judgment be given for the defendant, and a writ issued for the removal of this petition in this cause to the State of Kentucky, where the same may be sued out to pay debts, and that he make appearance at the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court for Granville County in Oxford, on or before the 20th of November next, and answer plead as far as he may see fit; and that upon failure to appear the prayer of the petitioner will be granted, and an order of sale made according to law.

The Raleigh Daily News.

SATURDAY NOVEMBER 9, 1872.

IN AUTUMN.

The year grows splendid; on the mountain steep,
Now lingers long the warm and gorgeous light,
Dying by slow degrees into the deep,
Deflected right.

The final triumph of the perfect year,
Blesses the woods' magnificent array;
Beyond, the purple mountain heights appear,
And slope away.

The elm, with musical, slow motion, laves
His long, lithe branches on the tenderair,
While from his top, gray, sonorous waves
His scaly boughs.

Where Spring first hid her violets 'neath
The earth, now Summer's fingers opened, told on fold,
The odorous, wild, red rose head, now burn
The leaves of gold.

The loftiest hill—the lowliestowering herb—
The fairest fruit of season and of clime—
All wear alike the mood of the superb Autumnal clime.

Now nature pours her last and noblest wine Lies back, exhausted; beside the singing streams
Reclines enchanted day, wrapped in divine Impassioned dreams.

But where the painted leaves are falling fast,
Among the vales, beyond the farthest hill,
There sits a shadow—dim, and sad, and vast,
And lingers still.

And still we hear a voice among the hills,
A voice that means among the haunted woods,
And with the mystery of sorrow fills
The solitude.

For while gay Autumn gilds the fruit and leaf,
And cloth her fairest vestal garments worn,
Lo! Time, all noiseless, in his mighty sheaf, Binds up the year.

The mighty shaft which never is unbound
The proper whom your souls beseech in
The loved, last year, which never may be found
Or loved again.

B. F. Moore and others Plaintiffs.

W. A. Jeffries and M. B. Mordecai, Executrix of Geo. W. Mordecai and Defendants.

In pursuance of a decree made in the above entitled action, I will sell at the Court house door in the city of Raleigh, on the 25th day of November, 1872, all the land on which J. Robert Jeffries, Esq., now resides, lying in the counties of Wake and Franklin, situated on Little River and containing about thirty-eight hundred (3,800) acres.

The tract has been divided into twenty lots embracing from one hundred to six hundred acres.

Copies of the plot showing these divisions can be seen at the offices of S. H. Rogers, Esq., and Messrs. Moore & Gaffling, of Raleigh, and the residence of J. Robert Jeffries, in Franklin county.

J. Robert Jeffries and William A. Jeffries Esq., will furnish any information which may be required. I will show over the premises any persons desiring to inspect the land.

The terms are One third cash; the balance in two months, with interest from day of sale.

The title, which is unquestionable, will be withheld until full payment of the purchase money.
